

Selston and Rural Areas A Profile

The name Selston was derived from the old Saxon word Salistune which is mentioned in the Domesday book in 1086.

This rural area covers Selston, Underwood and Jacksdale. It is a pleasant area situated on the borders of Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire. It offers a quieter village life set in delightful countryside with stunning views over hill and dale. Close to the M1 dwellers have easy access to the rest of the country. Ashfield Homes can offer 2, 3, and 4 bedroom houses, flats, bungalows and sheltered housing for the over 60s. This is one of the most popular areas within Ashfield, so demand is high and turnover can be slow.

Places of interest

Felley Priory, Underwood

The Priory is situated a few minutes from the M1 towards Underwood. It is a place of stunning beauty and well worth a visit. For further information please telephone the Hon. Mrs Chaworth Musters on 01773 810 230 or fax 01773 580 440

Jacksdale

Jacksdale has been awarded several prizes over the years for being a "best kept village". The nearby River Erewash and the Cromford Canal are part of the picturesque Jacksdale Nature Reserve. There is a small village square with a few shops and the Jacksdale Garden Centre on the Main Road.

There are places to eat, places to stay and leisure activities to enjoy. Selston has its own golf course (Tel: 01623 457911) and there are several public houses, many of which provide good food. Selston developed quickly with the coming of the canals, railways and the Nottingham to Newhaven turnpike road. These enabled the natural resources of clay, ironstone and coal to be transported from the mines to the more distant, fast - growing markets.
